A Vietnamese sandwich shop, Xe May is creating some special Banh Mi. Even in such a small space, the kitchen is cooking up big flavors – grilled pork, curried lamb, as well as lemongrass chicken, grilled meatball and beefsteak tacos. Some tasted their Super “Cub” Classic with an assortment of meats on a baguette, but I have been back three times for their vegetarian sandwich, The Mean Green. With soy glazed portobello, spiced tofu, and a cauliflower spread, it has hit the spot for me each time. A meal at Xe May tastes fresh and healthy with some added Vietnamese spice to kick your pallet into gear.
